DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election with traverse of the restriction requirement in the reply filed on 7/18/2006 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the search and examination of the entire application could be made without serious burden. This is not found persuasive because the examiner has already shown in paragraphs 1-2 of Office Action mailed 6/27/2006 that, prima facie, that they are different. In particular, the carbon nanotube dispersion liquid could be used in a materially different product than a polymeric nanocomposite such as in capacitors and hydrogen storage devices. Hence, a search for the nanotube dispersion would not necessarily overlap with a search for the polymeric nanocomposite.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 1714

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 5-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Hu et al (US 2004/0022981).

Hu et al discloses a nanocomposite comprising single-wall nanotubes and an aromatic polyamide prepared by mixing a dispersion of nanotubes in sulfuric acid with a solution of poly(p-phenylene terephthalate) and sulfuric acid, and then dried (Example 1, paragraphs 0024-0025).

Hu et al does not disclose that the nanotube dispersion is prepared by functionalizing the nanotube with basic or acidic groups and then dispersed in a polar solvent having opposite polarity, nevertheless, the nanotube dispersion is a product-by-process product limitation and therefore “even though product-by-process [limitations] are limited by and defined by the process, determination of patentability is based on the product itself. The patentability of a product does not depend on its method of production. If the product in the product-by-process claim is the same as or obvious from a product of the prior art, the claim is unpatentable even though the prior product was made by a different process.” See In re Thorpe, 777 F.2d 695, 698, 227 USPQ 964, 966 (Fed. Cir. 1985). Therefore, the nanocomposite and method of making the nanocomposite of Hu et al reads on the instant claims.

In light of the above, Hu et al anticipates the presently cited claims.

Alternatively, in the event any differences can be shown for the product of the product-by-process claims, as opposed to the product taught by Hu et al, such differences would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art as a routine modification of the product in the absence of a showing of unexpected results.

As a practical matter, the Patent Office is not equipped to manufacture products by the myriad of processes put before it and then obtain prior art products and make physical comparisons therewith." In re Brown, 459 F.2d 531, 535, 173 USPQ 685, 688 (CCPA 1972).
